Industry Update

The first quarter of 2024 has yielded what we're calling a market correction across Industrial asset sectors, after unprecedented growth in gross sales values across 2023.

Sales of Civil & Earthmoving equipment remain relatively stable, and Manheim is likewise achieving good levels of enquiry and steady pricing on Mining assets through our venture with Lennon Heavy Equipment. Dealer trade-in stock sits at a high level due to smoother supply chains and reduced new equipment prices, but big projects in the pipeline should bring contractors in particular back into the used market.

However, softening Transport asset pricing has resulted in more trucks and trailers coming through the Manheim auction yards, and clearance rates are the focus of our attention as the market adjusts expectations. Older assets in this class have been the worst hit in from a pricing perspective, and we note headwinds in regard to finance approvals. Vendors must be aware of the shift and come to terms with market values. This all being said, since some new builds still have considerable lead times, later-model and low-kilometer trucks and trailers are still achieving strong results.

Breaking things down a little further, Kenworth and Volvo lead the heavy-duty market while the Japanese manufacturers Isuzu, Hino and Fuso continue to dominate the lighter markets

We note that Council & Government asset clearance rates remain exceptionally high at around 85% with continued strong pricing, as these departments look to move on ageing fleet created by longer build times and shortages in the supply chain during the pandemic.

This sector is also working under additional government pressure to adopt more fuel-efficient assets, meaning electrification, hybrids, hydrogen fuel-cell etc, and potentially added CAPEX.

Manheim is seeing more work in insolvency-based valuations and the beginnings of increased asset realisation across various industries including transport, mining, agriculture and manufacturing. Corporate insolvency rates are rising in Australia and are expected to increase further into 2024, which is naturally something for Manheim Industrial to keep an eye on. Finance repossessions are likewise trending upward but are not yet at pre-COVID levels.

Small-to medium enterprises dominated corporate insolvencies, with the construction industry receiving the highest number of reports (28%), followed by the accommodation and food services industry (15%). The ATO has reportedly ramped up Federal Court actions to recover $30 billion in overdue small business tax.
